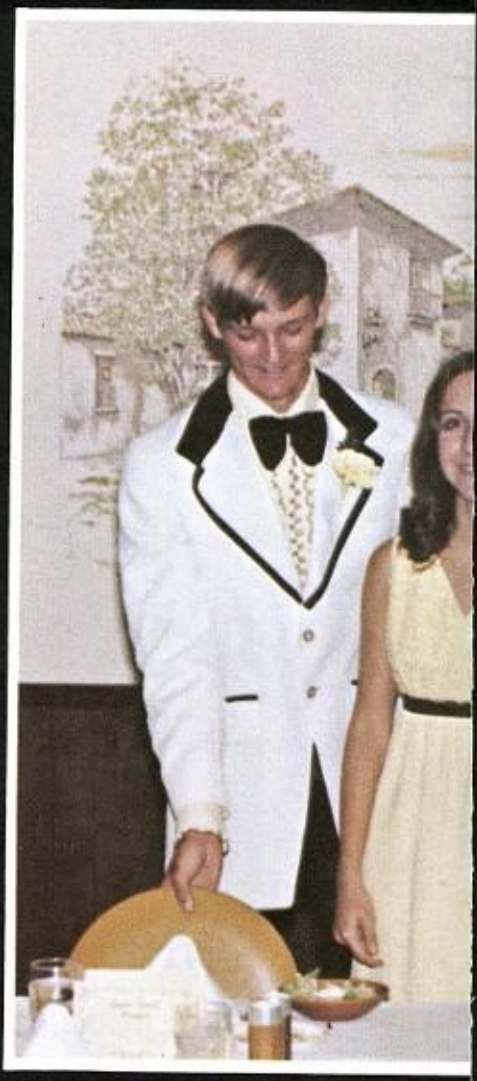
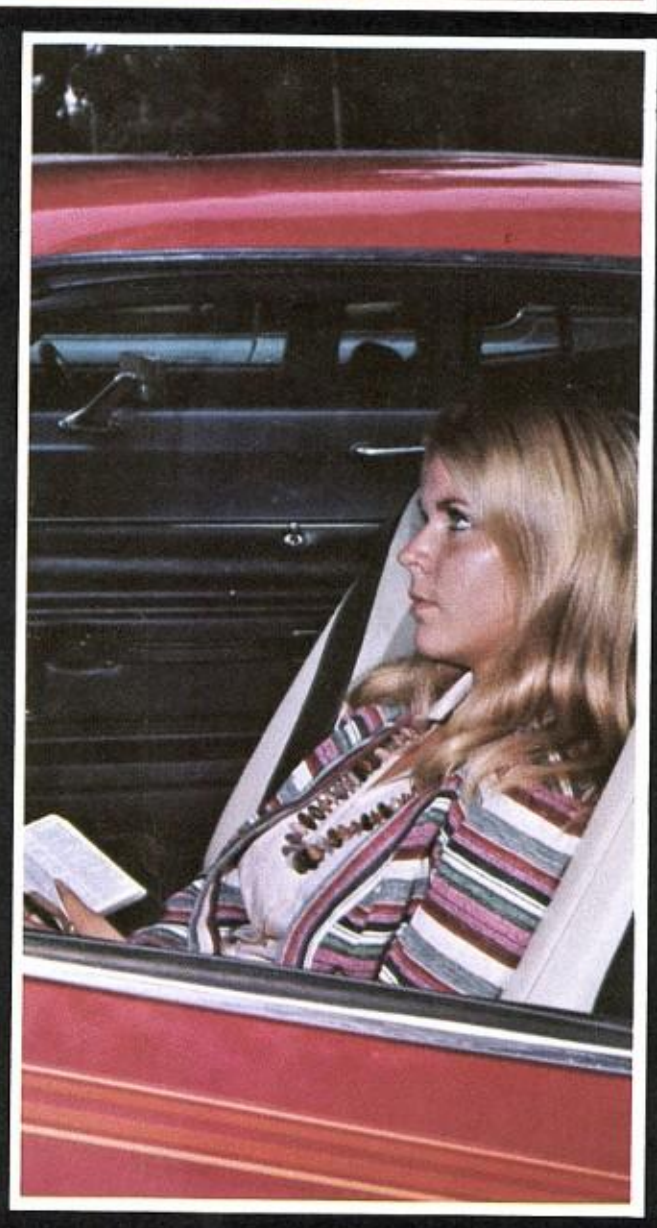
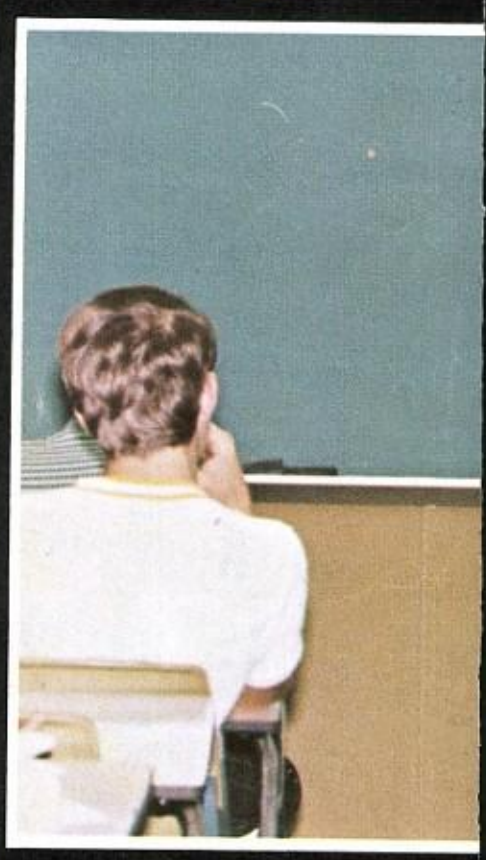
SCHOOL 18

. . . confronts us with the challenges of life. Daily we must choose to either accept or reject these challenges.







The love of Christ compels us to live for Him who made the supreme sacrifice. To be conformed to His will, we must first offer ourselves a living sacrifice, then put on the armor of God, and finally grow in the knowledge of the truth.

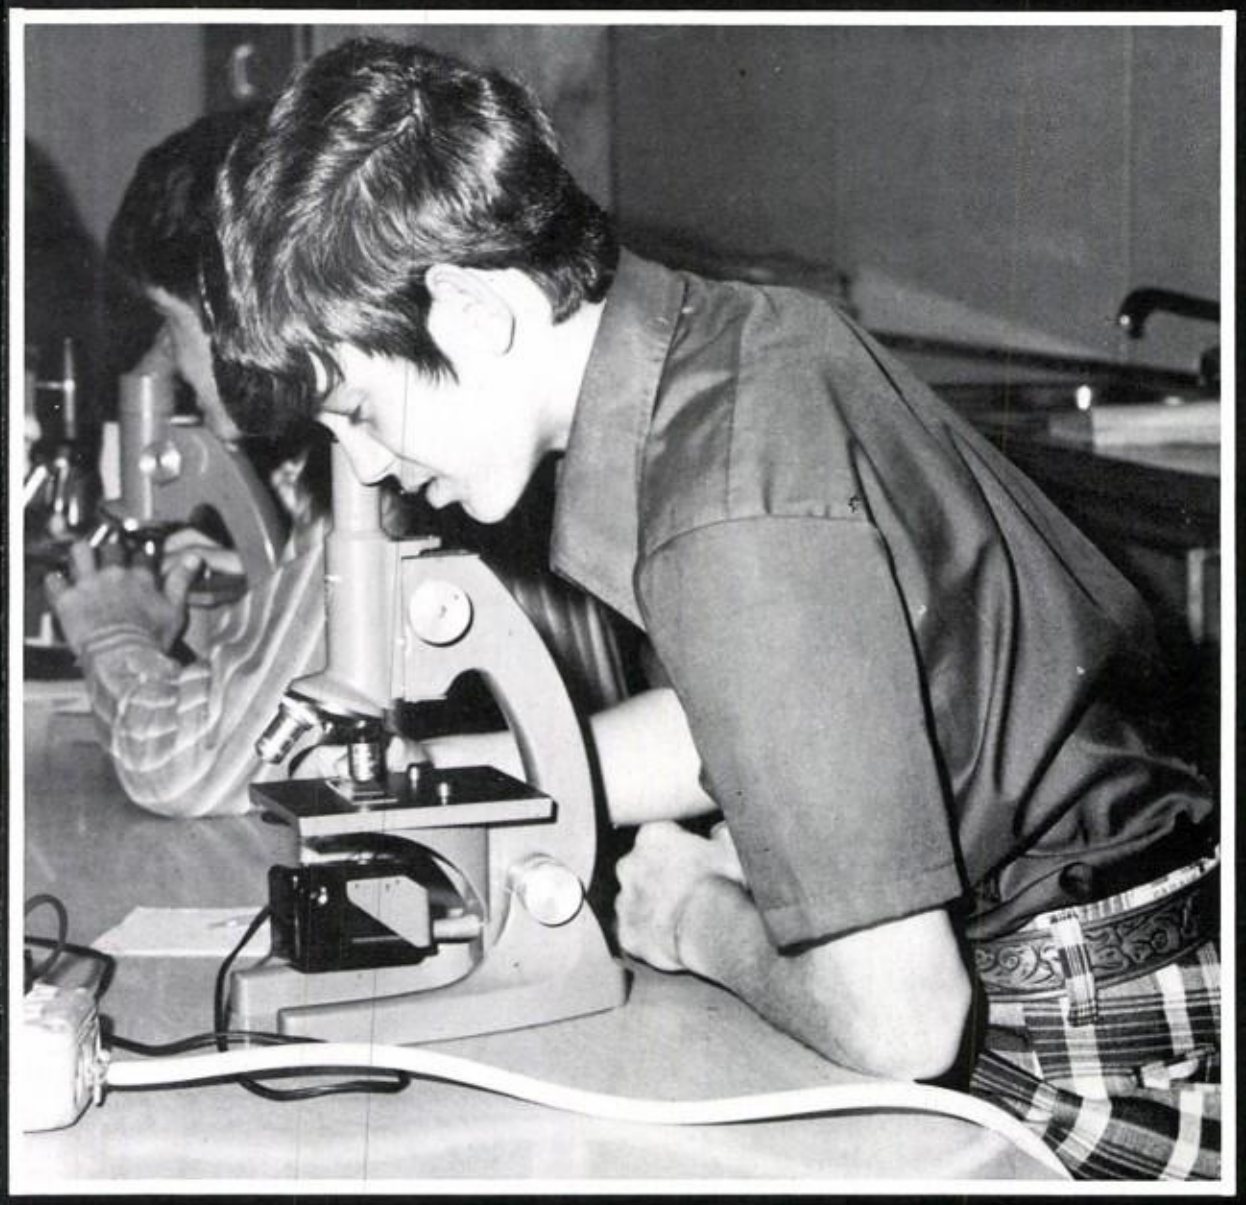
By dependence on Christ and His Word we are empowered to be more than conquerors.



Failure exists only when we refuse a challenge. Success is the confidence of knowing we have done our best.

Chapel Fostered Spiritual Life

"There will be chapel today third period. Follow your regular chapel procedures. Remember to bring your Bibles." With this announcement, the stage was set for an inspirational hour of spiritual enlightenment.

The guests ranged from full-time evangelists and school principals to the Campus Church pastor, Bob Taylor. Separation, assurance, and daily living comprised only a few of the speakers' topics.

Bible classes explored the promises, miracles, and prophecy of the Holy Word. Passages were instilled in the heart of each student. An offering was given by each class to their missionary during the Easter season. Missionary candidates, Mr. Bob Ames and Miss Carolyn Miley, captivated Bible students as they described their future work on the missionary field.

The chapel services and Bible classes provided the most vital part of the educational process. Spiritual nutrition promoted spiritual growth.

MUSIC

Singers Defined the Qualities Necessary for Good Music

A singer is one who utters words in musical tone with musical inflections and modulations. If you add twelve radiant personalities to this definition the result is the Christian High Singers.

Vigorously directed by Mrs. Crawford, these sopranos, altos, tenors, and basses provided a splendid addition to Vesper programs and assemblies at school. In the spring they presented inspiring programs on Sunday evenings to the area churches.

Chorale Offered a Varied Menu

Take a deep breath, open mouth, engage vocal cords, blend, and serve to audience with vivacity. With this recipe the head cook, Mrs. Crawford, stirred Chorale voices to appease the euphonic taste buds of the audience. Their music varied, as all dinners should, from sacred to secular. Yet it always sanctioned a connoisseur's delight.

Choralaires Endeavored to Perfect Voices

Twenty-seven sharply dressed Choralaires trained their voices under the direction of Mrs. Hampton. Emphasis was on mastering vocal skills with more difficult types of music. Continued practices resulted in successful performances.

Junior High Music Program Developed Talents

The Junior High musical program consisted of Vocalaires, Songsters, and Intermediate Band. Participants developed their talents through enjoyable learning.

Intermediate Band was a training ground. The future virtuosos ran the obstacle course around and through demerits. The forty-four members climbed up and down the scales and drilled in masterpieces by Beethoven and Bach. Maestro Nickson commanded the squad in operettas and assemblies.

Songsters sang the part of our Junior High vocal section. The forty-six harmonizers worked for the realization of proper posture and vocal control. Male voices accented the many female voices. The instruction provided by Miss Mast revealed itself in the remarkable arrangements the Songsters and Vocalaires presented in assemblies, Thanksgiving Vespers, and the Spring Arts Festival.

ORGANIZATIONS

ARROW Staff Captured the Year's Student Life

This yearbook captured less than five of the 75,600 minutes which made up the school year. Camera shutter speeds less than one-sixtieth of a second were responsible for this phenomenon.

The six ARROW staff members and their advisor, Miss Larson, toiled over 3,000 man-hours to compile this pictorial history. Laughing over unusual photographs, selling ads, brainstorming for headlines, and drafting final copy were enjoyable and memorable experiences.

ET CETERA Staff Discovered New Experiences and Ideas

ET CETERA was destined to meet the challenge of providing accurate, interesting, and newsworthy stories. This challenge impelled the nine journalism students to practice the inverted pyramid and answer the five W's and H.

Writing was not the only subject to be mastered. The photography of Jay McCorkle, Terry McLeod, Fred Wohlhuter, and Lark Hadley was an exciting addition. Experiences of developing their own pictures provided an unprecedented achievement to the perspective photo-journalists.

The challenges of mass communication were focused on with field trips to WEAR-TV, Pensacola News Journal, and P.C.S.'s Textbook Development.

Honor Club Maintained High Standards

Nothing was new with the Senior Honor Club. It continued in its endeavor to stress superior academic achievement, leadership qualities, and irreproachable citizenship.

Guided by Mr. Calbert, the nineteen scholars converged at members' homes for their meetings. As usual, the highlight of the year was the spring banquet.

Nothing changed with Senior Honor Club, but what is so bad about that?

ABOVE: "Don't you think he's cute?" Janet Dickson asked Rhonda Covalt. OPPOSITE: Y.P.A. encouraged the teachers to vote in the coming election. OPPOSITE BELOW: Seeing the Tallahassee legislature in session rewarded the industrious Y.P.A. members.

Earning Points Activated Y.P.A.

Young Patriotic Americans relived the problems encountered by Thomas Jefferson and our founding fathers in 1787-1789. A committee drafted a constitution designed to clarify the purpose of the club, its by-laws, and to provide experience in writing a constitution.

Sponsored by Mr. Lowman, the thirty-two citizens wrote letters to government officials, memorized poems, reviewed patriotic books, and picketed unsuspecting teachers in hope of getting them registered to vote. These efforts were made in order to accumulate five hundred points. Eligible members participated in a trip to Tallahassee where they viewed the workings of the Florida state government.

Mathematicians Proved Problems to Be Solvable

The complications in deciphering Watergate were comparable to many sit uations the nineteen Math Club member confronted. Mr. Crawford baffled thei minds with seemingly unsolvable prob lems. Learning to multiply by the use o fingers and understanding the basics of slide rule proved to be the accomplish ments reached by these adept mathema ticians.

Protozoa, Films, and Nature Intrigued Future Scientists

Senior Science Club endeavored to prove science an interesting subject. The factors involved were films, microscopic investigations, and a nature field trip. Films were an uncontrolled variable stemming from ocean depths. Microscopic investigation was limited to the minute world of singlecelled organisms. Nature incited the eleven students to recognize the constant expenditures of energy. Directed by Mr. Wolff, the theory proved true. Science is a fascinating subject.

Confrontation of Checkmate Consumed Minds of Chess Club

The enigma of combatting inflation was only slight in comparison to moves which vexed the thirty-two Senior Chess Club players. The perspective Bobby Fischers challenged opponents of like calibre by the rating held on the ladder. Mr. Yarusinsky — pronouncing the name correctly was as significant as checkmate — co-ordinated the matches.

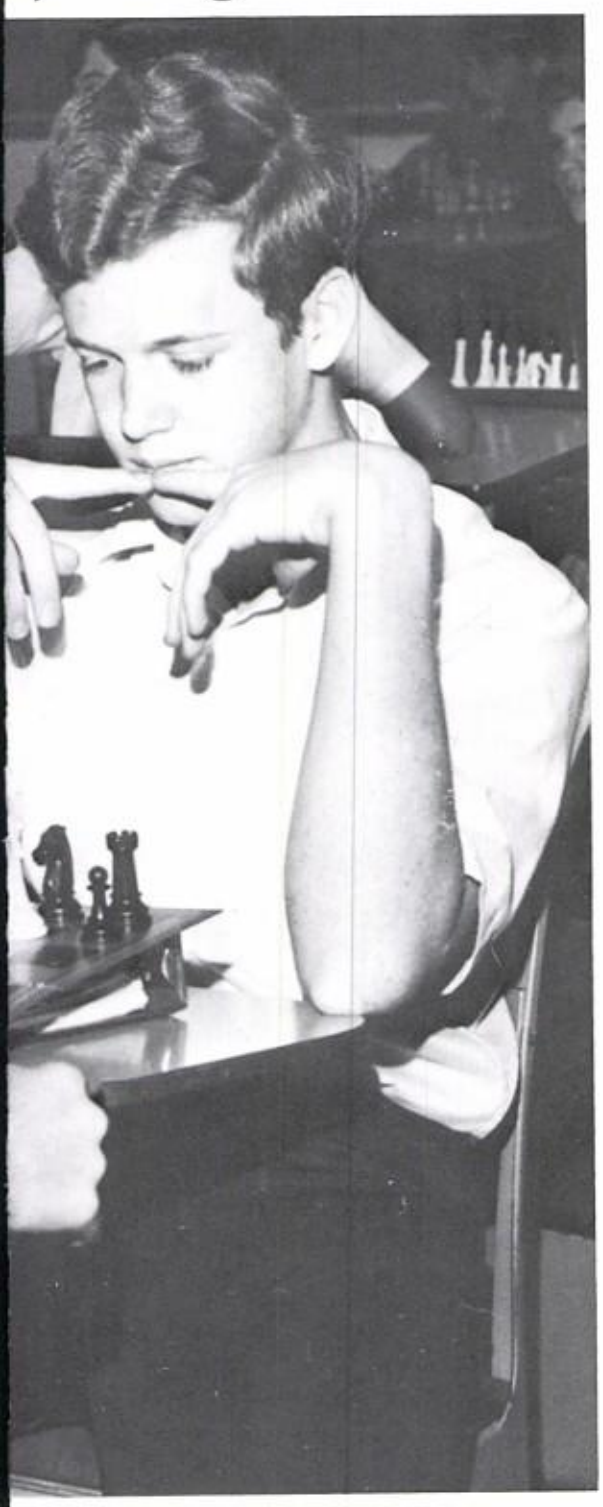
Cycling Club Covered Ground in Its First Year



Have you ever been in Brent Lane at 4:00 p.m. on a bicycle? This was just one of the many challenges Cycling Club conquered as a first-year organization. Even though minor accidents plagued several of the fifty-seven members, the inexperienced cyclists learned much from each problem. Mr. Bob Hesser, a local cyclist, was there on many occasions to emphasize the necessity of proper safety and maintenance. The routes, covering much of northwest Florida, were arranged by Miss Larson, the club sponsor.

Responsibility Was Assumed by Assistants

As Americans meet the challenges of preparing for Bicentennial 1976, students were provided with the challenge of learning to exercise authority. The duties of Student Assistants varied. "Your book is due two weeks from today . . . Clyde, did you bring the sodium chloride? . . . All right, 7A may take their trays back . . . I completed the timings on aerobics . . . Turn the spots and floods to number five." These students learned what responsibility was and how to cope with it.

Pep Club Abounded With Energetic Warrior Spirit

While shortages prevailed in energy sources of sugar, oil, and coal; Pep Club experienced no energy crisis. The one hundred eight boisterous members supported the Warrior teams unceasingly. The organization busied itself with designing posters, awarding spirit sticks, and selling booster badges and spirit tags. Miss Cary led the expenditure of energies.

Junior Varsity Boosted Spirit

Supporting a building is a foundation. Supporting the Junior Varsity team were their cheerleaders.

The five cheerleaders' spirited encouragement kept the basketball squad in earnest perseverance to win. Whether faced with injuries, losses, or wins, these five spirit sparkers never crumbled. Pre-game talks enriched the friendship of the J.V. cheerleaders.

Lettermen Launched Innovative Projects

The animated Lettermen inaugurated new schemes to appropriate funds. The dozen sports enthusiasts sold spirit jackets, held a slave sale, and even marketed doughnuts. Cam Carlson, aided by Mr. Grant, presided over the meetings.

The Sports Banquet and the purchase of needed athletic equipment culminated the efforts exerted by the athletes.

Which squad is it that encountered sore throats, sprained ankles, and aching muscles yet never scored a point? The eight Varsity cheerleaders who sometimes retreat to their closet in order to prevent Ben-gay from aerating their home.

In spite of being able to do the routines in their sleep, butterflies multiplied in the pre-game hours. Yet this nervousness was incomparable to the exploding tension of many close games. With racing pulses, straining voices, and rising temperatures, the spirit sparkers chanted, "Sink it! Rebound! Jump! Hustle! or Defense!" Anxiety and tension, of course, but also tears of joy as a winning cry would resound over the gymnasium.

Red Hot Varsity Basketball Team Fought With Mighty Warrior Power

After a lagging start of the basketball season, Warrior Varsity pushed aside individualism and played as a team. The fourteen member team compiled a commendable five game winning streak late in the season.

Coach Wubbena, the former Michigan high school coach, applied new innovations to Warrior strategy. Zone defense was preferred over man-to-man coverage. This change in defense was given credit for winning in many close games.

"If we play a good game, we can beat them," affirmed Coach Wubbena before each game. "And if we did play a good game, we did win," added Jon Laird.

Blocked shots, fast breaks, and consistent rebounds continually electrified the fans.

JV Progressed With Experience

Junior Varsity aimed for that coveted goal — Varsity.

The ball was taken out by the referee and awarded to the Warrior JV. The player passed the ball to a teammate over opponents' outstretched arms.

The receiving Warrior dribbled down-court. Signalling offensive play number one, the guard worked for that close shot. The ball is passed. The sophomore shoots and rips the basket.

Track Men Surged With Energy

"On your mark! Get set! Go!" The initial start released accumulated nervous tension. The stride lengthened and quickened as runners exerted their energies. Eye contact was on a fixed point twenty feet ahead. Adrenalin surged as the runner closed on the finish line. The final sprint transported the track man across the finish line.

Spring races spanned from fifty yards to two miles. However, field events such as discus throwing, jumping, and hurdles constituted a major part of track for Mr. Wubbena and the twenty-three track men.

Cross Country Team Persevered

Seven persistent cross countrymen competed in two to six mile races at UWF. Though records were not broken, the runners experienced the joy of setting and reaching personal goals.

Coached by Mr. Pico, the runners gained an appreciation of the word "endurance."

CATCH THE FALLING FLAG?

"Let it fall," some would say; but at Pensacola Christian College, we don't think so. We believe in America and what she stands for.

The American Dream never promised success, only opportunity. We believe that success is the fruit of an individual's hard work, integrity, efficiency, and loyalty, not the gift of government social planners.
